The Art of Delegation

Darshan-Aleeza Abramovitz

"You shall caution them regarding the decrees and the teachings, and you shall make known, to them the path in which they should go and the deeds that they should do. And you shall discern from among the entire people, men of accomplishment, G-d-fearing people, men of truth, people who despise money, and you shall appoint them leaders of thousands, leaders of hundreds, leaders of fifties, and leaders of tens." Exodus 18:20-21

"Yitro's advice was unique in that he showed Moshe how he could delegate while maintaining the integrity of the original, with no compromise. And the secret of doing so is by infusing in the delegation a spiritual standard of integrity that will always keep the delegatee on course." Simon Jacobson, "Yitro: On the Nature of Leadership & the Art of Delegation"

"Yitro's counsel is sensible, yet it is also counterintuitive. If the role of Moshe is to bring people close to G-d, and if he's the most qualified teacher, then why shouldn't he do it himself? Yitro's insight is that this monopolization of spiritual leadership actually distances the people from G-d, since it makes Moshe their exclusive mediator. This passage demonstrates the necessity of training a generation of religious leaders--no individual teacher, not even Moshe, can suffice to teach the ways of G-d. It is this basic task of education--of learning from his mentor and creating structures of justice for his people--that sets the stage for revelation." Rabbi Daniel S. Nevins, the Pearl Resnick Dean of the Rabbinical School of the Jewish Theological Seminary

"Moshe's leadership style until this point has been one of independence, and Yitro identifies the need to transform that style to one of interdependence, to an integration of the public with the private. ...the lessons brought by Yitro are critical for us to integrate into our own work, and to model for our students. We are able to be effective teachers and mentors only when we have developed a relationship based on trust and mutual connection. As we can only be effective leaders in the broader community when we recognize our interdependence, beginning with our intimate relationships of family and friends, and moving outward toward larger circles and broader missions in the world. In following Jethro's advice, Moshe builds an initial infrastructure for the people of Israel that begins the process of nation building. Through sharing in the process of decision making and sharing the leadership load, the whole community is strengthened, both the people and the institutions." Michael Simon, Harvard Hillel

Noten Yad (Extending a Hand)

Members of Beth David's Noten Yad organizing committee have begun calling Beth David members to invite them to their homes for "listening" get-togethers. The objective is to listen to the personal concerns and stories of our fellow congregants and turn them into action both within Beth David and in our wider community. There are already 22 local congregations of all faiths implementing this type of program including Congregation Beth Am, Congregation Shir Hadash, and Temple Emanuel. Please respond positively when you are invited to a listening meeting. It will take only one and one-half hours of your time and is a unique opportunity to get to know others in the congregation and contribute your ideas to further Tikun Olam. This is not a fundraising program! This program focuses on community action to address the concerns of our congregants. Pirke Avot teaches us: "Do not separate yourself from the community". Noten Yad will add our voices to those congregations of many faiths in our Silicon Valley community to extend a hand.

Saturday, February 13, 1:30 pm

"The Faith Club: A Moslem, a Christian and a Jew, Three Women Search for Understanding" by Idliby, Oliver, and Warner.

Kirkus Reviews said of the book: "Three mothers' engaging account of their interfaith dialogue. ...All three are mothers who want to teach their children religious tolerance, and each places great stock in her religious identity. In order to learn about the religious traditions of their neighbors, the authors came together to form a "faith club," meeting regularly to discuss prayer and ritual, their beliefs about God and the relationship between spirituality and social justice.... An invitation to a discussion that's hard to turn down—and a natural for book groups." All adults and teens are welcome. For more information, call Miriam Marr at (650) 968-7138.
